

I will provide an overview of the present status of the properties and nature of strange resonances below 1.5 GeV, as observed from pion-kaon scattering, which is one of the main sources of information for these resonances. I will concentrate on recent model-independent dispersive analyses and unitarized effective field theory approaches and discuss the relevance for this topic of the planned KLF facility at JLab.